The Rector's Message

Dear Friends in Christ,

The celebration which we are observing at this time of the 125th Anniversary of the Consecration of our present church building is indeed a milestone for those of us who are present here now, but we must remember that it is but one page in the long and sometimes even difficult history of this parish.

We stand today on solid ground only as a result of the tremendous work and faith of those who have gone before us and it is to them that we should dedicate our celebration. For more than simply celebrating the anniversary of a building, we are celebrating the anniversary of one of the important events in the on-going life of our parish. And in celebrating such an event we must celebrate the people who constitute the Church both in the past and the present.

We celebrate much more than 125 years in one building, for however beautiful and uplifting it may be for us, it is only a building and the essence of a parish is its people. It is they even more than the building which we celebrate on this occasion and I ask your prayers for both those who have gone before us and those who will carry on the work of the Church in this place after us.

Yours in Christ,

THE WHITE HOUSE

• WASHINGTON

April 7, 1986

To the Congregation of Trinity Church:

Congratulations on your 125th anniversary. I know you must be very proud to have reached this milestone.

As a nation united under God, our best efforts are directed toward the achievement of that enduring peace which is founded on respect for the God-given worth and dignity of every human person. In this commitment, the work of America's religious institutions is more important than ever. The comfort, compassion and moral guidance traditionally provided by churches and synagogues continue to inspire men and women in their selfless pursuit of the common good. We Americans are a proud and patriotic people. But we have always recognized that we owe our first allegiance to the God Who has so generously endowed us, for it is by His blessings that we prosper.

Nancy joins me in sending warm best wishes for your celebration. May God continue to bless you in all your endeavors.

Dear Mr. Grandjean:

Thank you so much for your kind invitation to the gala celebration which will be celebrated in honor of the 125th anniversary of Trinity Church. It certainly is a memorable occasion and I hope that you will express to the whole congregation my congratulations and best wishes.

Unfortunately, I have commitments that day both a visitation and subsequent events in Rumson. You certainly will be in my thoughts and prayers.

Faithfully yours,

Mellick Belshaw

Dear Mr. Grandjean,

Thank you for the invitation to attend the festival celebration of the 125th Anniversary of the consecration of Trinity Church, Woodbridge.

I regret that I will not be able to attend because of commitments that have been already made for that date.

Trinity Church has made such wonderful advancements in the last few years and we congratulate you. Please be assured of our prayers in the continued ministry we all share together.

Faithfully,

Historical Abstract

By: Howard L. Tune

Jonathan and Mary Dunham moved from Haverhill, Mass. to Woodbridge in 1670. The Township Council had offered them thirty pound sterling and all the sod they could use to construct the first grist mill in the area. On the south bank of Papiack Creek, the mill was built of wooden timbers. Soon, residents of Woodbridge were bringing wheat, oats and corn to the Dunham mill to be ground into flour and meal. In payment, Jonathan kept part of what he milled. Contemporary writers tell us that he was highly regarded in his work.

In need of a permanent home, Jonathan chose a parcel of land adjacent to the mill and hard by Kirk Green, which served as a kind of Town Commons. Papiack Creek today is a mere trickle, but in 1670, parts of it were deep enough to accommodate sailing ships. Further downstream from his mill, Jonathan collected ballast stones which had been discarded from sailing ships from Holland. With these stones he built a home for his family, the first brick structure in Woodbridge Township. For many years it would be considered the finest home in the area. Over the next decade, four Dunham sons were born. Son number three, Benjamin, would be instrumental in creating Trinity Church.

As early as 1698, missionaries from the Church of England visited Woodbridge in search of a flock. They found some ready hearers, but the area was a hotbed of religious dissenters, and an undercurrent of opposition existed. Benjamin Dunham had followed his parents religion, and joined the Independent (Congregational) Church, sited on the Kirk Green. In 1711, the Independent Church appeared about to join the Presbyterian fold. Ten dissenters, including Benjamin, signed a petition to the Governor for his leave to form an Anglican church. The site would be on a low rise between the Independent Meeting House and the Dunham House. Permission was granted almost immediately. Benjamin opened his family home for services until a church could be built. Thus, Trinity's first services were actually held in the Dunham Home — the present rectory.

Upon Jonathan's death in 1702 or 1703, his mill went largely unused. His son Benjamin declined to follow his father's profession, instead becoming a successful innkeeper. Being well acquainted with the community, Benjamin zealously collected money for the erection of a church. He was also the largest contributor. All of his spare time was spent building it. Tragically,

Benjamin died suddenly at age 35 in 1715. The church was not yet complete, and work soon ceased. Being incomplete led to its early deterioration and may have retarded the growth of the parish until a new church was built some forty years later. But what Benjamin Dunham started would not die away, as the coming years would attest to.

For the better part of three hundred years Trinity Church has served the needs of its congregations. It has survived local opposition, revolution, occupation by the British, fire, civil war, depression, parish vacancy and periods of near bankruptcy. Somehow, whenever Trinity's fortunes looked bleak, someone — rector, supply (temporary) priest, vestryman or lay person — has stepped forward to rescue it. Remember: James Parker, New Jersey's first printer, who served as lay reader and who helped Reverend Chandler build the second church in 1754, Remember: Vestryman Daniel Terrill who in 1811 worked night and day to save the church from near extinction by begging money from churchmen of the Diocese. And when enough had been raised, he slept in the church until it had been completely repaired by his own hands. Remember: Reverend Eugene Augustus Hoffman, who saw his wooden church burn to the ground one Sunday afternoon, then built a larger, brick structure which would stand one hundred and twenty five years. Remember: Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hance who all but donated two buildings (The Rectory and St. Martha's House) to the church. Remember: Professor John H. Love, lay reader and Senior Warden who in 1900 refused to close the church, even when only one person was attending services. Finally, let us Remember: The Reverend William H. Schmaus, who came to a vacant parish as vicar, revitalized it, and stayed more than 37 years.

As we read our church's history, one certain fact stands out clearly — that Trinity has faced and survived every conceivable crisis that time and man can offer. Faith in ourselves, Christian love and the selfless dedication of many has bridged the difficult times. As we have done in the past, certainly shall our parish do in the future. The success story of Trinity Episcopal Church is now nearly three hundred years long, and show no sign of ending. Its success has been a triumph of the spirit, the spirit of priests, of vestry and of lay people who have put their church and their faith above themselves. With good reason, we look confidently to the future.
